

The chart below shows all regular and runoff elections since 2000. Since 2000, there have been nine regular elections, four of which resulted in a runoff. In two cases (2002, 2010), this was a result of solely the mayoral race; in one case (2000) it was the result of solely council races; and, in once case (2006) it was a combination. Shaded cells with a bold black border show contests that resulted in an actual runoff. In those cases, the winner of the particular contest is identified. Of the six separate contests which resulted in a runoff, three saw a candidate other than the highest vote-getter in the regular election win (2000 AL-C; 2002 M; 2010 M). Cells shaded without a border indicate contests that would have resulted in a runoff if all races were by majority (50% +1). There have been a total of 38 regular election contests since 2000; if all races were by majority (50%+1) beginning in 2000, there would have been a total of 16 separate contests resulting in a runoff.
